Hopefully, having read some of the real nappy information, you may now like to see real nappies for yourself! Fortunately local large retailers are just beginning to stock a wider variety of real nappies but not all of the different designs. Below is a list of suppliers (both local and online) that can give advice as well as supply you with your real nappies. If you would like to see some samples of real nappies please contact the Bucks nappy initiative and a Waste Prevention Officer will be in touch.

Please note that the details were correct at the time of going to print and new services are being added all the time. Call the Initiative for up-to-the-minute information or view our website.

Internet Real Nappy Suppliers

As you can see this is a growing industry for real nappy sales. Bear in mind that you can't try out the nappies for free via internet providers. Suppliers generally charge you for a TRIAL kit of nappies (following email advice) that are non-returnable or postage and packaging is charged (both ways if items are returned). It can be difficult to guess what style and material will best suit your child from a picture, if you can try to view or trial nappies before you shop. Contact us for more advice. Then if you like to shop around or hunt for the bargains you will know what you are looking for.

Think carefully about buying a 'complete' Birth to Potty set of real nappies before or just after baby is born.

Consider this option again at the 8-12 week stage. Babies come in all shapes and sizes so buying a complete set of 1 type of nappy prior to the birth, may be a disadvantage if your child's shape doesn't fit the nappy as they grow. Cost savings may disappear if you decide in the future not to continue with their use, have to buy different/additional real nappies or return to disposables. Most real nappy parents have a mixture of the different types of real nappies to adapt to their situation. See Fact File 4 Newborn Nappies for more information about the types of real nappies that suit the newborn child
